

START IS TO BE MADE THIS YEAR ON CONNELLVILLE-TO-FARMINGTON ROAD PROJECT

As Part of a Comprehensive New Roads Plan in Fayette County.

NEW ROUTE TO PITTSBURG

By Way of Vanderbilt, Perryopolis and Monaca Valley Included in Scheme; A Total of 19 Miles to be Built by the State; Reservoir Pile.

At least a beginning is to be made on the construction of the Connellsville-to-Farmington improved highway as a part of the comprehensive road improvements to be undertaken in Fayette county. It was announced by the county commissioners at a meeting yesterday that this important section of road, which extends from Connellsville by way of Normalville, Mill Run and Ohioville to Farmington, is to be part of a new road to be built in Fayette county by the state. In addition the 34 miles of the National Road within the county will be placed in perfect condition out of the maintenance fund provided by the Legislature for this purpose.

In addition to the Connellsville-to-Farmington road, work on or perhaps both, the building program includes the following:

Three miles, beginning at Jennings Run, near the Ruby farm, west of Uniontown, to New Salem, via Shamrock.

Six miles of the Morgantown road, beginning at the intersection of the Fairbairn road, this side of Smithfield, via Point Marion to the West Virginia line, connecting with the improved road built by West Virginia to Morgantown.

A start will be made on Sprout route from Uniontown to Connellsville via Bathelboro, by beginning at Losax's Cross on the Leaning road and ending at the intersection of the road leading from Dunbar borough. In this connection it might be stated that Dunbar township has agreed to build a road into Dunbar borough at its own expense. This will be completed as rapidly as possible.

Between Chalk Hill and the Summit the pike will be resurfaced and widened, also between Chalk Hill and Souders field. Portions of the pike from the Uniontown division to the county home will be rebuilt.

In connection with the county program, the German township road will be completed this summer as early as possible. The county is entitled to $25,000 out of the state aid money appropriated by the legislature and a similar amount to be furnished by townships and boroughs, in all $184,000 for the permanent building of state aid roads. This part of the program has not yet been definitely decided upon.

The building of the New Salem stretch will give the lower part of the county a through road to Waynesburg from Uniontown via Shamrock and New Salem to the Arensburg ferry, where it will link up with the good road from Arensburg ferry to Waynesburg through Jefferson. The German township road, when finished, will give the upper part of the county also a fine road to Waynesburg from Uniontown through McClellandown and Mason town to the Massontown ferry, where it will link up with the improved road to Waynesburg from the ferry through Carmichaels and Kheville.

When the repair work on the national road is completed this thoroughfare will be in splendid shape and the completion of route 247 will furnish a good road from Uniontown to Pittsburgh by way of Connellsville. The latter requires the closing of a gap of seven and one-half miles, from the end of the present section extending from Lincolnton, Pa., west side of the Vanderbilt, Franklin township, Flatwoods and Perry and Jefferson townships to the Monaca valley.

LAST MINUTE RUSH BRINGS OUT MANY TO FILE INCOME RETURNS

Applicants Are Being Handled With- out Difficulty at the Federal Building, However.

The last minute rush of income tax payers to file their returns and make payments is being well handled by the force of income tax collector John Irwin at the postoffice. Several assistants are on the job today and there is very little waiting on the part of tax payers.

Today, March 15, is the last day allowed for the filing of returns and a heavy rush is expected this evening. The force of men filling out the blanks will remain at the postoffice building until 12 o'clock tonight and it is expected that all applicants will be cared for by that time.

The flow of income tax payers to the federal building has been steady for the past several days and there was a continual stream this morning. There are very few complaints being made on the income payments and little time is lost in filling out the blanks.

The first payment on the incomes is due today also. The tax can be paid in four payments but it is required that the first one be made today. The government, however, has asked that all who are able to pay the tax in full as soon as possible instead of extending it throughout the year.

A heavy fine and a term of imprisonment may be imposed on any who fail to file returns and who willfully dodge tax payments. The maximum penalty is a fine of not more than $10,000 or a year's imprisonment, or both.

FALSE MOVE HIS UNDOING

Robber Bumps Into Pile of Shoe Boxes; Noise Results in Arrest.

Caught in the store of Z. Melnick in West Crawford avenue early this morning by Carl Schmitz, who lives on the floor above, Michael Yadeskie, 18 years old, is being held at the police station. A charge of breaking and entering will be preferred against him by Z. Melnick, proprietor of the store.

Yadeskie had no time to take anything from the store before he was caught by Schmitz. He gained his entrance through a side window, and when he stepped into the store he bumped into a pile of shoe boxes, knocking them down. The noise awakened Schmitz who overpowered Yadeskie and took him to the police station.

There two dozen lead pencils which had not been used were found on him and also $2.56 in dimes and nickels. He said "some fellow" had put it in his pocket. A clock, evidently brand new, and a bundle of old clothes were found at a restaurant where Yadeskie had left them.

REPEAL OF HOG ORDINANCE MAY COME SHORTLY

Privileges Conferred by War Measure Abused, Members of Council Are Told; Officer Investigates.

The city council is seriously considering the repealing of the hog ordinance which allows the porkers to be raised within the city limits under certain conditions. It has been brought before council that although a number of hogs are being kept in the city, no permit has been granted this year.

Complaints have come to the board of health about hogs being raised on the South Side. This matter was investigated yesterday by Health Officer George Hetzel and he found 20 hogs in that section of the city, every one being kept without a permit from council.

He has not investigated in the other sections of the city yet, but has no doubt but what he will find just as many of the pigs elsewhere.

The mayor said this morning that inasmuch as the ordinance had been passed only as a war measure to assist in the greater production of foodstuffs, council was very seriously considering repealing it since the privilege had been so abused.

Under the ordinance it is permissible to raise hogs in the city provided properly drained sanitary pens, raised from the ground, and which are to be 100 feet from any residence, street or alley are used.

During his investigation on the South Side yesterday the health officer found pigs being kept only a few feet from a dwelling or thoroughfare. In other cases the pens were not even raised off the ground, the hogs being allowed to root in the earth.

Last year quite a large number of hogs were raised in the city but those keeping the porkers all applied for permits and their pens were passed on by the health officer, who saw they were kept in the required sanitary condition.

REFERENDUM ON NATIONS' LEAGUE CADMAN'S PLEA

Scheme Should First Be Discussed Throughout the Land, Lecturer Says.

WORLD LACKS LEADERS

No Roosevelt, Gladstones and Bismarcks in "These Terrific Times," Says Dr. Samuel Parkes (Cadman in Final Lecture of High School Course)

"Fittness publicity" for the constitution of the league of nations then a strictly non-partisan referendum vote by the people of the United States were advocated by Dr. Samuel Parkes Cadman in his lecture, "Our Duty in the Present Crisis," in the closing number of the high school entertainment course at the high school auditorium last night.

Dr. Cadman is a supporter of the society of nations plan, considering it the plain duty of the United States to join with its allies, England, Belgium, France, Italy and Japan and "right-minded neutrals" in some scheme to enforce peace and save the world from racial suicide, but wants assurance that it is accomplished in a wise and proper way.

America cannot escape becoming a party to the affairs of the old world, Dr. Cadman said. The nation entered upon a new era with the outbreak of the Spanish war. The society of nations was thrust upon it against its will, and "America must become the high priest for the welfare of mankind," he declared.

Lack of great national leaders of the type of Roosevelt and Gladstone and Bismarck "in these terrific times" was deplored. Dr. Cadman declared, are happening almost daily that in normal times would stir a nation to the extreme, yet so ordinary have they become that they cause (Continued on Page Two.)

scarcely a ripple of excitement.

As to the league of nations Dr. Cadman said he was not committed to any particular form but was waiting for it to be hammered into shape. He favored sending former President Taft, Senator Knox and Senator Lodge and Chief Justice White to Paris to help in the hammering process. When they bring home the completed draft, he said, it should be discussed "in this very hall" and every other school building.

Dr. Cadman is opposed to forming the league first, favoring selling the peace terms and then mobilizing the league of nations to back up the conditions stipulated in the treaty.

Declaring the United States government has perfected an aeroplane that will travel 800 miles under its own mechanism and automatically drop high explosives on a designated spot, that great quantities of explosives have been sunk in the Atlantic miles off Sandy Hook because their destructive force imperiled everything in the vicinity of land; that Great Britain is building a ship of war 900 feet long—that is to mount guns with a range of 59 miles, Dr. Cadman asserted that unless there is a league of peace by 1930 or 1940 the white race will have committed suicide.

As further emphasizing the need for stoppage of war for all time, the speaker attempted to illustrate the fearful toll of death on the battlefields of Europe during the four years of war. If, said he, the ghosts of the millions of dead were marshaled in military array and marched through Fairview avenue past the high school three months and three weeks would be required before the last would be moved by America's dead of 50,000 could be reviewed in three to four hours, he said.

Dr. Cadman occasionally referred in critical terms to President Wilson. The President has not lived up to his "pious publicity" utterance since he spoke the words, he said. As opposed to the President's attitude to this time on public discussion of the league of nations plan, Dr. Cadman declared that it should be discussed in every school in the land so that to even the children the scheme would become as clear as Washington's Birthday. Declaring that there is marked division over the President's policies, Dr. Cadman said he had had no less than 100 persons tell him recently that there is need of light on the nation's league proposal.

In support of his assertion that it is the duty of the United States to stand by England and France he referred to the sacrifices they have made. Illustrating this he told of being in London when the Grenadier Guards, the Coldstream Guards and the Black Watch started for the front. Last week, he said, the Grenadier Guards came home—what were left of them—22 men out of the 3,000 who went out four years ago.

This English speaking people of the world should form the nucleus of the league, Dr. Cadman declared. Germany would be barred until she has repented of her crimes. The Almighty could do no more than refuse admission to a nation that has not obeyed the biblical injunction to repent of sins and renounce its evil ways.

Federal regulation of the public schools of the country if the states fail to bring the schools to the proper standard was viewed with favor. The speaker said: "He deplored the low wages paid teachers in many wealthy states and referred to the fact that the male teacher will shortly become 'extinct.'"

"If I had my way we would double the school tax and then hold a jubilee when it was all paid," he said. "He asserted that there is no greater investment a man or woman can make than funds put to use for popular education."

Dr. Cadman, like other speakers in the school course, complimented the city on its magnificent high school.

The speaker was introduced by Rev. Wilbur Nelson.

MAGNIFICENT DINNER PREPARED AND SERVED AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

By Young Ladies of Junior and Senior Domestic Science Classes; School Board and Connelville Guests.

The young ladies of the junior and senior classes in the domestic science department of the high school demonstrated to the complete satisfaction of the school board, city council and other guests last evening that they have mastered in every detail the difficult art of preparing and serving a magnificent course dinner. The occasion has become an annual event in this department and fills the function of graduation exercises in the course in domestic science for the members of the senior class. During the year preparing and serving meals is a part of the instruction but only once in a formal dinner prepared for guests outside of the class membership. This is looked forward to with great interest by the members of the class as affording them an opportunity to show how well they have learned the essential duties of a successful homemaker and host. They did last night to the great delight and satisfaction of those who were privileged to be their guests.

The dinner was served in the domestic science department dining room in the basement. The tables were set in the form of a "T" and neatly and simply decorated with narcissus and ferns. Covers were laid for 17. The dinner was ready to be served promptly at six o'clock, but it was several minutes later before all the guests had arrived. The menu follows:

Fruit Cocktail. Olives. Chicken Souffle. Toast Turkey. Canned Sweet Potatoes. Mashed Potatoes. Creamed Cauliflower. Hot Rolls. Lettuce with Russian Dressing. Sherbet. Candy. Nuts. Coffee.

The work of preparing and serving the dinner was under the direction of Miss Mary L. Gans, supervisor, and Miss Anne Donnelly, assistant supervisor, of the domestic science department. The young ladies who gave such substantial evidence of their skill were: Misses Amalia Schuler, Gladys Hauck, Mary Kathryn Alldridge, Margaret Kerrigan, Ruth Humbert, Ruth Slaughter, Mary Walsh, Margaret O'Hara, Margaret Van Gorder, Elizabeth Hoffman, Madeline Blocker, Mahel Stillwagon, Irene Davis, Rhoe Crodzin, Louise Rankin, Anna Marion Solson, Eleanor McClure, Mary K. Fleming, Estelle Wilson, Lella Colborn, Margaret Hetzel, Anna Sennip, Mary Laws, Anna Restofski, Leona MacPhail, Jean Enos and Ivanore Darr.

The tables were served by Misses Alldridge, Solson and Laws. The place cards, emblematic of St. Patrick's Day, and also the invitations, were designed by the members of the domestic science classes in drawing.

All the members of the school board and the city council, except Dr. C. W. Utts and Councilman Hoover, were present. Other guests were W. S. Deffenbaugh, supervisor of school administration, United States Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C., former Mayor R. Marletta, City Clerk A. O. Bixler, J. J. Thompson and John L. Gans, President Roy C. Hotzel acted as toastmaster, introducing Mayor Duggan, Mr. Deffenbaugh, J. J. Thompson and John L. Gans, who made brief addresses. At the conclusion of the dinner the young ladies were called to the dining room and on motion of Mayor Duggan, were given a hearty vote of thanks for the splendid meal they had prepared and served with such completeness and perfection in every detail.

The large church was filled to its utmost capacity with relatives and friends of the deceased, and previous to the services hundreds of persons visited the O'Connor home to extend their sympathy to the grief-stricken family. Solemn requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. Father John T. Burns, assisted by Rev. Father McNamany and Rev. Father Henry DeVivo. The floral tributes were many and unusually beautiful, the room being nearly filled with large baskets, set pieces and bouquets of roses, lilies and other cut flowers. The Greensburg high school basketball team will play the Connelville high school here tonight. The game will be the first of the season played with Greensburg. The team in the past has always proved a strong rival. Nothing of the strength of the visitors this year is known here.

DUNBAR TOWNSHIP LOSES

High School is Humbled Before Connelville Basketball.

The Connelville high school quite trounced the Dunbar Township high school aggregation at Lelansburg last night, 25-14. The locals confidently expected to win the game and had no trouble in maintaining a lead. The local's victory last night makes the second defeat over Dunbar Township this season, that team having been properly handled in a game here. Quite a number of rooters accompanied Connelville to Lelansburg.

FURNACES REDUCING COST OF MAKING IRON BY 25 TO 75 CENTS

Improvement in Quality of Coke Reduces Consumption Down to Normal; Cut in Ore Price Expected.
The furnaces are gradually reducing their costs from the altogether inflated war-time basis. They are saving as much on the restoration of normal quality to coke as they are on the reduced cost per ton, and probably more, says the American Metal Market.

Coke consumption per ton of pig iron is down to normal, whereas at many furnaces, probably the majority, it was 10 to 20 per cent above normal for many months. The cost of coke now generally runs between $4.50 and $5 per ton at Connellsville ovens, plus freight though some contract adjustments for February shipments were at considerably above $5.00. Furnaces having such prices, however, expect a corresponding advantage in the March adjustment.

A number of furnaces can count on coke costing them $4.50 for March.
For an average operation the coke consumption per ton of pig iron would be about 2,200 pounds. It is from Connellsville to valley, is $1.80, making the cost $6.30 per ton of coke delivered, or for 2,200 pounds $6.83 per ton of pig iron made. At the former cost of $6.00, or $7.80 delivered, and 2,500 pounds consumption, the cost per ton of pig iron would be $9.75, showing a decrease of $2.82 per ton of pig iron. This is only an average case.

There were cases of much more than 2,500 pounds coke consumption, also cases of furnaces paying as high as $9.00 for coke, on contracts made just before the government price was fixed. Such furnaces, however, generally got good coke and did not have the high coke consumption, that furnaces experienced when they paid only the government limit.

Through greater labor efficiency the labor cost per ton of pig iron has come down somewhat, perhaps 25 to 75 cents per ton. Apart from the saving due to greater efficiency, quite a number of furnaces have discontinued paying time and a half for hours worked over eight, so that for a 12-hour day they pay for 12 hours instead of for 14 hours. The rate being 42 cents an hour, there is a saving of 32 cents per man, but not nearly as much as that per-ton of pig iron. A rough guess would be that the labor cost of making pig iron, at hand filled furnaces, is down about a dollar a ton.

As to the furnaces are hoping for a reduction of about a dollar a ton, but they may get only 25 or 30 cents and perhaps not that. This would not be much actual saving, if any, however, since the last ore advance went into effect only October last, so that as a rule the war-time costs in making pig iron were not figured on the highest priced ore, while since the advance went into effect much ore has been delivered.

John G. Senior Entertains Big Gathering in Honor of James Harry Connor.

NOUVEAU FROM FRANCE

Miss Gladys Miller of Keffers Entertains in Perfect Condition; Herbert Baker Writes on Battle Experiences; Techn News

Special to the Courier
PEACH March 15—One of the largest most delightful and enjoyable gatherings ever witnessed in this community was the farewell party given by John G. Senior at the senior home at Keffers Thursday night in honor of James Harry Connor a schoolmate and companion in war activities in university training who after his discharge from the service enlisted in the Navy and leaves for his duties within a few days. Guests from all over Peach town and adjacent localities participated. Games of various sorts interspersed with vocal and instrumental music, occupied the evening hours until 10:30 when the spacious diningroom was thrown open and a feast that a king might covet served. Dishes with the national and class colors made up the table decorations. Among the guests were Jesse Moore, William J. Adams, Charles Hanes, William W. Senior, Luther Miller, Robert Adams, James E. McCluskey, Kenneth Louder, Harry E. Mitchell, Charles O. Smith, Boyd F. Warden, Clark E. Miller, Wayne H. Hinkle, John F. McClain, Frank D. Hinkle, Roy A. St. Clair, Ray S. "Cuts" the Cookies.
 Mrs. C. W. Baker has received a letter from her son Herbert in France. He states that although he went "over the top" four times before the close of the war, he was never even scratched by a German bullet or shell. He says he has met a number of friends he likes and from them has learned to talk French with the proper accent. The only undesirable acquaintance he has made are the cookies but in his present location he has cut their society altogether. He further states that he is in excellent health, has plenty to eat and is almost as fat as Julius Fershaw. He has not yet been informed when he will be sent home.

Clarence Cole Home.
 Clarence Cole after an absence of months at training camps and a much less pleasant experience as a patient in hospitals, finally recovering his health has been honorably discharged and has returned home. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cole of Ferguson.

Miss Start Fire.
 Because of the timely discovery of a smoking flame thought to have been started by a mouse nibbling a match, William Leaphone of Peach still had a home A bucket of water put out the flame and a cedar chest and some bed clothes suffered, the only damage which was about $50 fully covered by insurance.

Pipes in Mountain Water.
 Claiming that he is getting too old to go a mile to the reservoir for his abstinences, George W. Smiley of Keffers has, among other improvements, installed a commodious bath in his home and supplied it with pure mountain water.

Personal Notes.

DOROTHY GISH AND BEN ALEXANDER HEARTS OF THE WORLD

THE SOISSON.

HEARTS OF THE WORLD—D. W. Griffith's spectacular production which comes to his city in the very height of its remarkable success and with the record of having surpassed Mr. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance" will be presented Wednesday and Thursday, March 19th and 20th.

Contrary to the general impression "Hearts of the World" is not a war play although Mr. Griffith spent 18 months in Europe securing the material employed in the latter part of his story. The producer himself describes it as "The story of a village in a old-fashioned way with a new-fashioned touch." While the recent struggle in Europe is shown in all its magnitude and reality, it serves only as the background for a very happy story of the lives of very simple folk in a small village in France, where lovers dream under the moonlight on casement windows and where the very air has stirred the hearts of the greatest lovers of history.

"Hearts of the World" might be more aptly styled a romance of love and war, with love first and foremost. The fact is that the stirring battle scenes only emphasize the love element, just as the young people of the play represent not only themselves but the hearts of the world.
 Mr. Griffith's production has for its locale a small village in Flanders, an ancient territory partly in Belgium, partly in France, which, with Picardy, equally old, famous as the scenes of the battles of Crecy and Agincourt of old have so recent in the weight of the sun upon their necks. When the story opens all is peace and the ends of the lives of two artist friends Americans, who have made France their homes for years, is being heard in the lives of their children. The Boy and The Girl find themselves early in the action of the play.

THE PARAMOUNT.

CARMEN OF THE KLONDIKE—A five part photoplay with Clara Williams in the principal role as being shown today. The story which is thrilling and gripping, with suspense running throughout, concerns the adventures of a middle west vaudeville favorite a part portrayed by Miss Williams who departs her theatrical career to go to the Klondike region of Alaska and seek her fiance Cameron Stewart a young attorney who went before her to establish himself on the boat she meets Silk McDonald, a man who is famous for his infamy with women. McDonald is attracted to her and asserts in rage when she ignores him that he will obtain her for his own. Upon landing in Alaska McDonald, who is well known because he is the proprietor of the gayest amusement hall in Skagway hurries ahead of the girl, and when she arrives at the home of Stewart she receives the greatest shock of her life due to the trickery of McDonald. From that moment on throughout the story, even when she becomes the dance hall favorite of the Klondike to which depth she degrades herself in her reckless mockery at life she believes that Stewart is a traitor to her love. Monday Ethel Barrymore will be seen in "The Divorcee," a five part Metro feature.

THE SOISSON.

"A PERFECT LADY"—A Goldwyn photoplay starring Madge Kennedy, the captivating screen star is being shown today. The Merry Burlesque company is stopped from performing by the morals committee of Syracuse. Mary Higgins the leading lady decides to stay in town and earn her own living. She opens an ice cream parlor where dancing is also taught. A crusade is conducted against her by John Griswold church deacon and a wealthy The Rev. David Grayson believes that Mary is better than her critics. Griswold goes to Chicago. Fanny White, cabaret dancer writes Mary from the Windy City that Griswold is enjoying himself there. Mary advertises a free motion picture show, Griswold and his followers attend. The worthy deacon is seen upon the screen disporting himself with chorus girls in Chicago. The exposure turns the townfolks in Mary's favor. She consents to become Grayson's wife. A selected comedy is also being shown Monday and Tuesday Harold Lockwood, will be seen in a big production.

SCOTTDALE THEATRE.

THE BRAT comes to the Scottdale theatre Tuesday March 18, direct from an all season's run at Morosco theatre, New York City, and triumphantly runs in Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston. The Brat has also met with great success on the Pacific coast, where it was shown for the first time on any stage at the Morosco theatre in Los Angeles. Miss Spooner enjoys the distinction of being one of the cleverest dancers on the American stage as well as possessed of unusual dramatic ability. The play is clean and sweet, "The Brat," as played by Miss Spooner, is a bit of East Side, New York whose shining experience has been gained as a "punch" chorus girl at the New York Hippodrome. She is rescued from a woman's night court by a cool, keen, novelistic who takes the girl to his home as a type to study. The writer's domestic entourage furnishes the social foil for the girl's delicious ignorance and bubbling spirits. There is his mother proud but shallow and insensitive a younger brother with a weakness for drink encouraged by the nagging of his elders an uncle who is a bishop worldly and pompous a faithful and bibulous butler and two affected, young women engaged in a cynical contest for the novelist's attention. The nameless brat draws a false conclusion from the author's kindness and is well on the way to heartbreak when her affections are diverted to the younger brother who takes a brace finally and carries her off to a ranch in Wyoming much to the chagrin of his proud relatives. The coming of Miss Spooner should be interesting to local playgoers. Manager Bailey guarantees the attraction.

WOLVES of the SEA

Copyright © 1919 by C. D. BARRISH

"So you are hiding here, Cochose? What are you looking for in the sea?" "What? Why that d—d Englishman, Mon Dieu! He fought me like a mad rat!"

"The Englishman, you say? He was here then? It was he you battled with? What became of the fellow?"

"He went down there, señor. The dog stabbed me three times. It was either he or I to go."

"You mean you threw him overboard?"

"Ay, with his ribs crushed in, and not a breath left in his d—d body. He's never come up even—I've watched and there has not been so much as a ripple where he sank."

The two must have hung in silence over the rail staring down. I dared not advance my head to look, nor even move a muscle of my body in the water.

"How came you off here?"

"Because that fellow leaped the rail from the wharf. I saw him, and we met at the wheel."

"From the wharf, you say? He was not aboard, then? Santa Maria! I know not what that may mean. Yet what difference, so he be dead. Anderson, Mendez, throw that cur down overboard—no, bullies, never mind; let them lie where they are, and sink an anger in the ship's bottom. What is that out yonder, Cochose?"

"A small boat, señor—a dory, I make it."

"Cut the rope and send it adrift. Now come along with me."

The darker room of the sloop vanished slowly, as the slight current sweeping about the end of the wharf drifted the released boat to which I clung outward into the bay. There was scarcely a ripple to the sea, and yet I felt that the boat was steadily drifting out into deep water. I was still strangely weak, barely able to retain my grasp. Finally I mustered every ounce of remaining energy in one supreme effort and succeeded in dragging my body up out of water over the boat's stern, sinking helplessly forward into the bottom. The moment this was accomplished every sense deserted me, and I lay there motionless, totally unconscious.

I shall never know how long I remained thus. Yet this time could not have been great. As though awakened from sleep a faint consciousness returned. Then the sharp pain of my wounds, accentuated by the sting of salt water, brought me swift realization of where I was and the circumstances bringing me there. I had evidently lost considerable blood, yet this had already ceased to flow, and a very slight examination served to convince me that the knife slashes were none of them serious. My other injuries were merely bruises to add to my discomfort—the result of blows dealt me by Sanchez and Cochose, aggravated by the headlike hug of the giant negro. Indeed, I awoke to the discovery that I was far from being a dead man; and, inspired by this knowledge, the various incidents of the night flashed swiftly back into my mind.

No gleam of light appeared in any direction; no sound echoed across the dark waste of water. It was clearly impossible for me to attempt any return to the wharf through the impenetrable black curtain which shut me in. What, then, could I do? What might I still hope to accomplish? Those fellows had swept the sloop clean, and had doubtless long ago departed. They would surely find themselves untroubled, unalarmed. Would that suffice to stop them? Would the discovery of his body halt his followers and send them rushing back to their boat, eager to get safely away? This did not seem likely. Katada knew of my boarding the sloop from the wharf, and would at once connect the fact of my being ashore with the killing of Sanchez. This would send him in search of me no further than the beach. These were not men to flee in panic. Surely not with that ruffian Estada yet alive to lead them, and the knowledge that fifty thousand pounds was yonder in that unguarded house, with no one to protect the treasure but two old men asleep, and the women. The women!—Dorothy! What would become of her? Into whose hands would she fall in that foul division of spoils? Sanchez! And I, aloof and helpless in what could I do?

CHAPTER IX.

A Swim to the Namur.

It was black, hopeless; with head buried in my hands I sat on a thwart, dazed. Before me, peering, expressive of agonized despair, arose the sweet face of Dorothy Fairfax. No doubt by this time all was over—the dead body of Sanchez, discovered, the projected attack on the house carried out, the two old men left behind, either dead or severely wounded, and the girl borne off a helpless prisoner. Ay, but this I knew; there was only one place to which the villains might flee with their booty—the Namur of Rotterdam. Only on those decks and well at sea would they be safe or able to enjoy their spoils. The thought came to me in a sudden revelation—why not? Was not here a chance, even yet to tell them? With Sanchez dead no man aboard that pirate craft could recognize me. I felt assured of this. I had fought the giant negro in the dark; he could not, during that fierce encounter, have distinguished my features any more clearly than I had his own. There was no one else to fear. If only I might once succeed in getting safely aboard, slightly disguised, perhaps, and mingle unnoticed among the crew, the chances were not bad for me to pass undetected. Such ships carried large crews and were constantly changing in personnel. A strange face appearing among them need not arouse undue suspicion. And I felt convinced I could locate the Namur. But could I hope to attain the ship in advance of the returning party of raiders? God helping me, I would try! My brain throbbled with fresh resolution—the call to action.

There were stars in the boat. I slipped the useless rudder jib and chose my course from the stars. My boat had drifted considerably farther out into the bay than I had supposed, and it required a good half hour of steady toil at the oars before I sighted ahead of me the dark outlines of the shore. At first I could identify nothing, but finally there suddenly arose, clearly defined, the faint outline of a dead tree, bearing a faint resemblance to a gigantic cross, that had been pointed out on the sloop.

This peculiar mark was at the extremity of the first headland lying north of the point itself, and consequently a straight course across the bay would land me within five hundred yards of where the Namur had last been seen at anchor.

To a degree my immediate plan of action had been definitely mapped out within my own mind while toiling at the oars. I would beach my dory and strike out on foot directly across the narrow neck of land. The Namur was not so far out from shore as to make swimming to her a dangerous feat, and I could approach and board her with far less chance of discovery in that manner than by the use of a boat.

The greater danger would come after I had attained the deck, not to the skin. The sharp bow of the dory ran up on the soft sand of the beach, and I stepped ashore.

Then there came to me the first real consciousness of the reckless nature of this adventure. As I faced then the probabilities there scarcely seemed one chance in a hundred. And yet I must admit there was the one chance; and in no other action could I perceive even that much encouragement.

If Dorothy Fairfax was already in the hands of these men, then my only opportunity for serving her lay in my being close at hand. No alternative presented itself; no other effort could be effective. It was already too late to attempt the organization of a rescue party. No, the only choice left was for me either to accompany the girl or else abandon her entirely to her captors. I must either face the possibility of discovery and capture, which as surely meant torture and death, or otherwise play the coward and remain impotently behind. So I drove the temptation to falter away and strode on up the bank into the black shadow of the trees.

I found extremely hard walking as I advanced through tangled underbrush. Fortunately the distance was even shorter than I had anticipated. It was not until after I had advanced cautiously into the water and then stooped low to this gain clearer vision along the surface that I succeeded in locating the vessel sought. Even then the Namur appeared only as a mere shadow, without so much as a light showing forward, yet apparently anchored in the same position as when we had swept past the previous afternoon. I waded straight out through the lines of surf, until all excepting the head became completely submerged. If I were to reach the bark at all this was the one opportunity.

I stood there, resisting the undertow tugging at my limbs and barely able to retain my footing, intent upon my purpose. Full strength had come back to my muscles and my head was again clear. With strong silent strokes I swam forward, directly breasting the force of the incoming sea, yet making fair progress. Some unconsidered current must have swept me to the right, for, when the outlines of the bark again became dimly visible through the night I found myself well to starboard of the vessel, stroking well under water and with only my eyes exposed above the surface. I changed my course to the left and slowly and cautiously drew in toward the starboard bow. A few moments later, unperceived from above, and protected from observation by the bulge of the overhang and density of the shadow, my hands clung to the anchor hawser, my mind busy in devising some means for staining the deck.

CHAPTER X.

On the Deck of the Namur.

It was here that fortune favored me, strengthening my decision and yielding a fresh courage to persevere. Forking out directly over where I clung desperately to the wet hawser, my eyes were able to trace the bowsprit, the rather loosely furled up its flapping ragged edges in the gusts of wind. Suddenly, as I stared upward, I became aware that two men were working their way out along the footropes, and as they reached a point almost directly over my head, became busily engaged in tightening the gaskets to better secure the loosening sail. The foot of one slipped, and he hung dangling, giving vent to a stiff English oath before he succeeded in hauling himself back to safety. The other indulged in a chuckling laugh, yet he was careful not to speak loudly. "Hed one drink too many, Tom?" he asked. "That will pay for fishin' the bottle an' never givin' me another swag."

"You, h—l! Yer hed the foot ov it. That's no sorter luck yer don't get yer fair share of, Bill Haines—trust yer fer that. What I ain't got straight yet is whar that stuff cum from an' enssy."

"That was part o' the luck, Tom. Did yer git eyes on that new feller Manuel Estevan brought back with him in the boat?"

"The one you and Jose carried aboard?"

"Eh? The lad. That wa'n't nuthin' the matter with the coze, 'cept he was dand drunk. We was waitin' on the bench fer Estevan, an' three fellows he hed taken along with him inter town ter cum back—the nigger, Jose, an' me—when this yere chump hove 'longside. He never hailed us, ner outlin'; just clim over into the boat, an' lay down. I shook him, an' kicked him, but he wadn't no use, so we just left him lie there fer Manuel ter say what was ter be done with him. Only Jose he went through his pockets an' found three bottles o' rum. We took a few drinks an' hid whut was left in the boat locker."

"So that's how yer got it! Who was the party?"

"That's the party? I never tell yer. I never got no sight of him, 'cept in the inter the footropes, an' showed him inter a berth ter sleep off his liquor. That was the last I ever see or hear of him fer 'bout six hours, when this yere feller must a woke up in the footropes cum crazy. He cum a charmin' out on deck, whoopin' like an Indian, wavin' a knife in his hand, intendin' fer ter raise h—l. Well, it happened that the first feller he run up against was Levere, who was comin' forward for smuthin', an' fer about minute that was one h—l or a fight. It was so dark I couldn't tell whut did happen, but it was fass most, till the mate drove the poor devil, cussin' like mad, over agin the rail, an' then heaved him out inter the water 'longside. I heerd the feller splish when he struck, but he never let out no yell."

"What did Levere do?"

"Him? He didn't do nuthin'. Just stared down over the rail a bit, an' then cum back, rubbin' his hands. Never even asked who the feller was. That ain't nuthin' kin skeer that black brute."

"He ain't got no human in him. It's h—l when English sailors has got ter like orders from a d—d nigger, an' he knocked 'round if they don't jump when he barks. He's got ter get a knife in his ribs sum day."

"Maybe he is; but yer better hold yer tongue, Tom. Sanchez don't stand fer that talk, an' he's back o' Levere. Let's go in; when gaskets will hold all right now—cum 'long."

I could now perceive now clearly the character I was destined to assume when once safely aboard the Namur. Such an assumption would involve but slight danger of discovery. It was as though a miracle had opened the way, revealed to me by the unconscious lips of these two half-drunken, gossiping sailors. The story told fitted my necessities exactly. Had I planned the circumstances myself, nothing could have been better prearranged. No one on board had seen the missing man by daylight, he was believed to have sunk without a struggle. Yet no one knew positively that this was so, because no one cared. The death of the lad had simply been taken for granted when Levere had failed to see him, and when I finally topped the rail and was able to look inboard it was quite within the realm of possibility for the fellow to come up once more to that, darkness, beyond Levere's range of vision; and even to have remained aloft, buoyed up by clinging to the anchor hawser, until strong enough to return on board. At least there was no one aboard the Namur able to deny that this had been done.

Satisfied by this reasoning of being able to pass myself off as the dead man, I began slowly and cautiously to drag myself up the footropes. I had chosen a fortunate moment for my effort; no one heeded the little noise I made, and when I finally topped the rail and was able to look inboard it was quite within the realm of possibility for the fellow to come up once more to that, darkness, beyond Levere's range of vision; and even to have remained aloft, buoyed up by clinging to the anchor hawser, until strong enough to return on board. At least there was no one aboard the Namur able to deny that this had been done.

"That's him; so yer've heerd of 'Black Sanchez? Well, we're sailin' 'long with him, at right, mate, an' yer ought ter know whut that means for a good man."

I hesitated, yet only long enough to leave the impression I sought to make on their minds.

"Likely there's a sailor but whar has heerd o' him," I said slowly. "It don't look like thar was much choice, does it?"

Levere appeared amused in his way, which was not a pleasant one.

What did yer cum from?"

grewled, and I as instantly recognized Bill Haines. "Betch sojerin', have yer? Well, now, lay to an' pull."

Before I could attempt an answer a tall figure loomed up before us, the same high-pitched voice I had noticed previously calling out sharply:

"There, that's enough, men! Now make fast. We can head the old girl out from here in a jiffy, if it really begets to blow. Jose, you stand by at the wheel, in case yer're needed; some of the rest o' the ship the capstan bars, and remain near for a call."

"What are ye awingin' the yards fur, anyhow, Levere?" asked Haines insolently. "Just for exercise."

"Because I am a sailor, Haines," he replied angrily. "Anyhow it is none of your business; I was left in command here. Thar's doubt don't look good to me; there is going to be a blow before morning."

Haines growled something and Levere wheeled sharply about to go forward. This movement placed him face to face with me.

"What are you loafing here fer? Who are you?"

"Joe Gates, sir," I answered quickly, mentioning the first name which came to my mind.

"Gates—Joe Gates?" peering savagely into my face but unable to distinguish the features. "I never heerd of anybody on board by that name. Who is the fellow, Haines?"

The Englishman gripped me by the sleeve to whiff me 'bout, but as his fingers touched the soaked cloth of my jacket he burst forth with an oath.

"It's wet enough to be the same, an' you checked overboard an' hour ago. I believe he is. Say, mate, are you the gay back he hauled aboard drunk, and dumped into the forecassal?"

"I dunno, sir," I answered dumbly, believing it best not to remember too much. "I couldn't even tell yer whut ship this is, ner how I signed on. Last I seem ter remember I was ashore from the schooner Caroline; but this yere is a bark."

Haines laughed, already convinced of my identity, and considering it a good joke. Then he proceeded to tell me all about it.

Levere broke in with a savage snarl. "What's all that? Do you mean, Haines, that this is the same d—d scamp who tried to stick me?"

"No doubt of it. But he never knew what he was doin'—he was crazy as a loon. There's nuthin' fer yer ter fuss over now. Tell us about it, Gates—what he must have sobered yer up."

I watched Levere, but he remained motionless, a mere shadow.

"I suppose it must have been that, sir," I confessed respectfully. "If things happened as you say they did, I haven't no memory of 'tryin' fer slash nobody. Leastwise I seemed ter know whut I was about when I cum up. I don't remember how I got ther; fust I knew I was stushin' 'round in the water, a tryin' ter keep afloat. It was so blime dark I cudin't see nuthin', but sunshin' I got grip on a hawser, an' hung on till I got back 'bout strength ter climb on board. I was whut I was, but I just lay quiet awhile, figurin' out whar I was."

"Yer English?"

"Born in Bristol, sir, but I was workin' on the Caroline—she's a Colony schooner, in the fish trade. At sea since I was twelve. What's this yere bark—Dutch, an' she?"

HOW WEAK, NERVOUS WOMEN QUICKLY GAIN VIGOROUS HEALTH AND STRONG NERVES

7 A DAY FOR 7 DAYS

A Vigorous, Healthy Body, Sparkling Eyes and Health-Colored Cheeks Come in Two Weeks, Says Discoverer of Bio-feren.

World's Grandest Health Builder Costs Nothing Unless It Gives to Women the Buoyant Health They Long For.

It is safe to say that right here in this big city are tens of thousands of weak, nervous, run-down, depressed women who in two weeks' time could make themselves so healthy, so attractive and so self-confident that they would compel the admiration of all their friends.

The vital health building elements that these dependent women lack are all plentifully supplied in Bio-feren.

If you are ambitious, crave success in life, want to have healthy, vigorous body, clear skin and eyes that show no dullness, make up your mind to get a package of Bio-feren right away.

It costs but little and you can get an original package at any drugstore anywhere.

Take two tablets after each meal and one at bedtime—seven a day for seven days—then one after meals till all are gone. Then if you don't feel twice as good, look twice as attractive and feel twice as strong as before you started your money is waiting for you. It belongs to you, for the discoverer of Bio-feren doesn't want one penny of it unless it fulfills all claims.

Note to Physicians: There is no such thing as the Stimulus of Bio-feren. It is printed on every package. Here it is: Lanthanum, Calcium Glycero-phosphate, Iron, Potassium, Manganese, Potassium, Ext. Nux Vomica, Povid. Benzoin, Glynnibutaine, Oleoresin Capsicum, Kola.

WITH THE SENIORS.

(By Charles Sheets)

There is a great need for unity in the senior class this year. The late winter classes have had the lid clamped down on their activities, but since the war is over this lid can be removed to a great advantage to us. Although the class is not organized there can be a spirit taken into it that will bind it together tighter than it has been.

Some people say that after a person comes up to high school for a couple of years one's learning power is exhausted, but we still have some seniors who are learning every day. For instance, Louise Hankin, has learned how to fix her eyelids. John Shad or can wiggle his ears, and Jim Langley has learned how to wink at a girl without blinking.

In chemistry class Martha Kaufman and Ruth Hildegarde were off talking for the long period of five minutes. They did not talk but we would like to know how they felt to have something common in them that they wanted to tell each other.

Somebody better watch Jean Enos a little closer. When she saw the referee at the Scottish basketball game she was heard to say: "Oh! I'm not out. I wonder if he is married?"

Mr. Allison: "Do any of you know how many books there are in the library?"

John Hunter, as usual: "I don't. I never counted them."

We don't know what has struck the mind of the Senior class whether it is love or not, but some are badly affected with some illness of the mind.

The other day in chemistry John Moore unconsciously picked up a Bunsen burner, blew it out and forgot to turn the gas off. Looks bad, John.

The other day in history current topics were being discussed. Mr. Allison asked Russell Durnell what his current topic was. "Well, I got this topic out of a magazine. I don't know if it is current or not," replied Russell.

Irene Buttermore entertained a number of Senior commercials and some of her friends at her home on Prospect street last Tuesday night.

The "pathos" of the evening were dancing and several corner-roles by Joseph McConnell and Graydon Horwick.

Wanted—A good mathematician to find the value of "x" on the bottom of the notes found in several Senior books. Maybe it is not algebra but they have some unknown meaning.

THE SOPHOMORES.

(By Ruth Clark)

To the High School Students: Orange and Black, we're proud of you. You've won us every game.

For many, many years to come. We all shall praise your name. You start each game with spirits high. We know that you will win.

Each play is made so fast and sure. The heads of opponents spin. In future years when in life's game, play always just as straight.

If this is done we prophesy. You'll win as sure as fate.

Miss Lyons: "And there will be no Turkey in the future."

Ray Henry: "Of course not; it will be all Greece." (Greece.)

Mr. Smith: "In what course do you expect to graduate?"

Sophomores: "In the course of time."

Sadie: "I'm trying my best to get ahead."

Mary: "Well, we know you need one."

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF THE STUDENTS.

EDITORIAL.

Now that the lecture course has finally ended the students and also quite a few of the fathers and mothers will have the pleasure of knowing whether or not it is profitable to buy a season ticket. We have an idea that there will be quite a few extra season tickets bought next year. The school officials in charge of the course have found that in nine cases out of every ten those who did not purchase season tickets, thinking they would not come enough times to use it, found themselves really attending the course and actually paying in more money for these single admission tickets than they would have paid had they bought several season tickets.

The students and also the people of the town do not realize this fact until after the course is over, when it is too late.

It is not too late at this time, however, to begin making up your mind that next year you will not be caught in such a situation, and we ask you for your own benefit and the assistance it gives the course to buy season tickets next year and keep our entertainments here.

Friday morning of last week the lights suddenly went out. Of course they had to go out just as the students were thinking of what a fine chapel exercise they would have that morning. Then it was announced that there would be no chapel exercises on that account. As a result some of the teachers "forgot" and we had 15 extra minutes of lessons.

The high school lecture course closed last night with the lecture given by Dr. Samuel Parkes Cadman. We were glad to see a good turnout of the students at the lecture. The number last night closed one of the most successful seasons the course has had in Conneltsville.

THE FRESHMEN.
(By Elizabeth Keener.)

If Charles Buttermore would behave for Miss Fretts then Ella Mae might look at Mr. Allison when reciting and it is possible that Harold would quit talking to Theola in the halls. Also, if Demetrius would think more of his lessons and not so much of Hazel, maybe a certain "little girl" would stop smiling at Wilson McClaren.

But if "Reverend" Foster happens to read this and doesn't even laugh we give it up as a bad job.

Miss Sherrick: "Now do you all understand this problem?"

Philip: "Gosh, I don't. Miss Sherrick."

Miss Sherrick: "Well, Philip, look at the board and I will go through it."

While Mr. Allison was telling one of his classes some of their faults, he said: "Speak loud and don't be afraid to look at me." After class one girl remarked that it was almost impossible to look at him and still have control of her eyes.

"You know," said Helen. "I'm feeling blue."

"Oh! Gosh," chimed Josephine. "That's nothing new."

"Heaven," says Catherine. "are you at it again?"

"Well, if they don't soon stop!" Mill Hazel chips in.

"Are you ticklish that way," Martha said without fear.

Oh! Sugar, Theola, our sayings are here. They'll print them, I know, and the rest of the class.

Will always be laughing whenever we pass.

If you have seen the notice in Study Hall you will understand why the Freshmen part of the Tiger is not as good as it might be.

JUNIOR NOTES.

(By Earl Lucius)

Have you noticed how popular Lloyd Menefee is?

It seems as if Gladys Hauke and Nanna Hood are continually quarreling over him. We wonder why?

Miss Armstrong has threatened to put several girls in solitary confinement if they do not study in study hall.

In Commercial Geography class—Miss Weihe: "Where are dates produced?"

Nanna Hood: "On Eighth street." Tom Newmeyer: "Can one live on dates?"

Miss Weihe: "Certainly not."

Miss Weihe's assembly has the distinction of being the only class that hopes to turn out an artist.

Dave Jones: "Beryl, where's the chewing gum I loaned you yesterday?"

Beryl Dobbie: "Home on the mantle."

To the South Side students of High School: We wish to express our most sincere sympathy in your recent bereavement. (The clock at Kragy's has been stopped for three days.)

Miss Baker is evidently trying to make a museum of the library. A few weeks ago she told us of a desk that ran around in the library, and now she says there are some superstitious books down there.

Alice Kramer: "Miss Baker, don't you have to have a diamond ring to be engaged?"

Miss Baker: "I don't know, I was never engaged."

A great change was noticed on Saturday night at the basketball game when Mr. Bode put Jimmie McConnell into the fight.

FIRST AND SECOND YEAR.
(By Richard K. Dixon.)

Ripping Rhymes by L. M. Second Year.

Oh! I wish the summer would hurry and end.

And all our exams would be done. We'll have three months in the creek. And play tag, and hide-and-go-seek. We might have some work as a rule. But it wouldn't be as bad as school. We might have to run errands or cut the grass.

But it wouldn't be as bad as reciting in class. But it's no use of wishing for vacation to come.

It'll come just as soon as our school-work is done.

Advice of Miss Adams to the Second Year girls:

Many girls of your age spoil their character by running after the boys. Let them alone and when the right time comes you will have plenty of opportunities if you are still in the band wagon.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Sals for Your Back, Hairs or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it but flush your kidneys with Sals occasionally. Sals is a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Sals from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous Sals is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Sals is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.
